January Worship Service Schedule

1/5 - The Story of Us

Join us for a captivating worship service where we explore the power of storytelling to inspire, unite, and transform. Stories are at the heart of who we are—as individuals, as a community, and as Unitarian Universalists. Through spoken word, reflection, and music, we'll celebrate the stories that grip us, guide us, and bring us into mutual care.

This service will ask:

What's the story we tell about ourselves and our community?

How do our shared stories reflect our values and vision?

What story will we leave for those who come after us?

Come ready to be inspired by the magic of story—its mystery, its wonder, and its power to remind us of our deep interconnectedness.

All are welcome! Bring your presence, your curiosity, and an open heart as we reflect together on "The Story of Us."

1/12- Stitching the Fabric of Our Lives into Fellowship

Our beloved UUFBF Community has its own unique pattern in all our lives. UUFBF is a fabric stitched with the threads of our lives sewn with love. We meet as UUs weaving our threads of wisdom, learning, care, and spirituality. In all the activities we share at UUFBF, our friendships, and values as UU members are embroidered into the fabric of our lives and stretch beyond UUFBF into our local community and society.

1/19 - Borrowing From Yourself

When Martin Luther King became pastor of Atlanta's Ebenezer Baptist Church in 1960, he made the following recommendation to the congregation: "In order to instill the idea of thrift in our members and reveal the concern of the Church for the economic life of man, a committee shall be appointed to organize a Credit Union... The need for such an institution in our Church is unquestioned. It will serve as a channel through which members can save money, and it prevents them from having to go to downtown finance companies to make loans for exploitative interest rates. Actually when the individual makes a loan from the Credit Union of which he is a member, he is borrowing from himself." This Sunday, Heather Landstrom from Guardians Credit Union talks about how credit unions still play a critical role in providing financial services to communities that have been traditionally underserved or unbanked.

1/26- Discourse on Victor Frankel/ International Holocaust Remembrance Day

Genocide cannot happen without the presence of the bystanders. The people, who although not directly participating in a Genocide, stand by and in silence as thousands and sometimes millions of people are murdered simply because of their identity or belief. Part of preventing Genocide, therefore, involves the creation of new type of citizens, the upstanders, people who refuse to be silent and indifferent in the presence of atrocities. People who stand up and say no to dehumanization and persecution of any group of human beings and who understand the value in human diversity.

Happy 60th Birthday, Unicorn!

“In January of 1965 the Unicorn was born. Its name was the “whimsical brainchild of our [Board] President, Herb Pocklington,” explained its first editor, Maurice Dufficey. The columns of the early church organ were largely filled by Editor Dufficey’s erudite and witty essays on whatever struck his satirical fancy. In time they gave way to a more informative and functional type of newsletter.” from Through Thick and Thin: The first 20 Years history of UUFBR (click on title to read the full version) by Helen Hartley.

Vision & Mission Workshop: Shaping UUFBR's Future Together

As we enter a new year, it's time to look forward and reimagine the future of UUFBR. Our beloved congregation has been a spiritual home for so many of us, a place where we find meaning through our shared volunteer efforts and commitment to Unitarian Universalist values. But if UUFBR is to thrive, we need a renewed sense of purpose. We need to answer the fundamental questions: Who are we? Where are we going? Why is UUFBR here?

This is why we are launching the Vision & Mission Workshop—an opportunity for all members to come together and shape the future of UUFBR. It's a chance to reflect on what unites us as a community and articulate the values that will guide us forward.

Why Now?

A Vision Statement asks, "Where do we see ourselves in five years?" It's been far too long since we asked this question as a congregation. It's time to dream big and imagine what a thriving UUFBR could look like in the years to come.

Meanwhile, a Mission Statement asks, "How do we want to be known in the larger community?" It challenges us to define what makes UUFBR unique and how we live out our values in the world.

These two statements together define who we are, where we're going, and how we'll get there. They're the foundation for everything we do as a congregation, from our worship services to our social justice initiatives.

Why Your Participation Matters

Crafting these statements is not just an intellectual exercise; it's a deeply spiritual one. It's about coming together as a "Beloved Community in training" and committing to the values that unite us. Yes, WE WON'T AGREE on every aspect of Unitarian Universalism—its intellectual, emotional, spiritual, and action-oriented expressions—but that's part of what makes us strong.

The real challenge is to find it within ourselves to embrace this diversity. Can we practice tolerance that grows into acceptance, acceptance that blossoms into appreciation, and appreciation that leads to gratitude? If we can, we'll be stronger for it. But this only happens if each of us is willing to show up and share our vision.

Get Involved

We invite every member of UUFBR to participate in this process. Whether you're a year-round member, a snowbird, or a friend of the Fellowship, your voice matters. Here's how you can get involved:

- In-Person Vision & Mission Meetings: Join us in the Turner Room on 1/5, 1/19, and 1/26.
- Zoom Meetings: Participate every Monday night from the comfort of your home.
- Vision & Mission Workshop: Save the date for February 8th, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. This hybrid event will include small group discussions, a shared lunch, and a collective drafting session.

This is your chance to help shape the future of UUFBR. Let's come together to create a vision and mission that reflects the best of who we are and the potential of what we can become. Together, we can ensure that UUFBR continues to thrive for generations to come.

Board members subsequently engaged with the candidates in a series of conversations before convening at the November 11 Board meeting to make a final decision. After thoughtful consideration, the Board unanimously voted to nominate the following candidates to run for election as the new UUA Moderator or Co-Moderators:

- Rev. Kimberly Quinn Johnson, minister of the UU Congregation of the South Fork on Long Island in Bridgehampton, New York, and Bill Young, a trustee on the UUA Board who also served as the UUA Secretary from 2020-2024, who are running as a team. If elected, Johnson and Young will serve as co-moderators.
- Natasha Walker, Developmental Board Chair at Black Lives of Unitarian Universalism (BLUU), who is running as an individual candidate.

The election for the new Moderator or Co-Moderators, who serve for a term of six years, will take place at General Assembly 2025. The newly elected Moderator or Co-Moderators will take office immediately after GA 2025. The term of the current Co-Moderators, the Rev. Meg Riley and Charles du Mond, ends after GA 2025.

Learn more about the Moderator election process, including how to run by petition, in this story from UU World.

In addition to the two options nominated by the board, a candidate or candidate team may run by petition to the secretary of the Association. The deadline is February 1, 2025, for candidates who choose to file a nomination by petition.

The moderator, a volunteer position, is the chief governance officer of the UUA. The moderator chairs the UUA Board of Trustees; is the presiding officer at the annual General Assembly; and works closely with the board, executive staff, and committees of the Association to shape and hold the vision and mission of the UUA.

You can find more information about the candidates at: Candidates for UUA Moderator \(2025-2031\) | UUA.org.

Sacred Sounds: Music to Welcome the New Year

As we welcome the New Year, it's a good time to think about what matters to us. In January many of us look for new beginnings, and music can help lift our spirits, match our beliefs, and bring us together in hope. Classical music can be perfect for this time of reflection and fresh starts. I'm listing here some pieces that can guide us through personal meditation or shared moments of celebration.

"Morning Has Broken" is a beautiful old song from Scotland that Cat Stevens made famous. Its words about the beauty of dawn connect well with January's promise of new starts. When we hear lines about each morning being the first morning and each day being the first day, it reminds us that we can always begin again. The gentle tune and its connection to nature make it special whether for quiet reflection or group worship.

Beethoven's "Ode to Joy" is another powerful piece to listen to this month. The grand choir finale in the 4th movement of his 9th symphony speaks about coming together and our shared humanity. Its uplifting melody calls for fairness and kindness. When we listen to this masterpiece, we can feel connected to people around the world who share our hopes for a better future. The powerful orchestra and voices remind us of the strength we find in community.

For quiet thinking time, Bach's "Prelude No. 1 in C Major" offers peace and calm. Its flowing notes create a space where we can pause and reflect on our lives and goals. The steady pattern feels like a gentle river, carrying our thoughts forward. At the start of a new year, this piece reminds us to find beauty in simple things and to appreciate the steady rhythm of life that continues through all seasons.

Schubert's "Ave Maria" touches people across all faiths with its gentle melody. While it comes from a Christian background, its beauty can speak to everyone who seeks peace and connection. This melody can bring comfort during winter's quiet moments and help us feel less alone. Many find that this piece creates a space for deep emotional connection and healing.

As you have already heard -and I won't get tired of saying-, music has this amazing power to say things that words cannot, bringing us closer to deep truths and each other. These classical pieces, each in their own way, speak to our hopes and values. As we begin this year, they can inspire us and keep us going through both challenges and celebrations. Whether you listen alone in quiet moments or share these pieces in community, may this music fill your January with hope, joy, and purpose.
